

Ken Beehler is an expert in construction dispute resolution and mitigation. Ken began his career as a litigator, during which he helped resolve complex cases involving construction and contract-related disputes. After several years as a practicing attorney, Ken transitioned to working in the construction engineering industry as a Senior Vice President with WSP USA. Ken was an integral part of high-profile projects across the U.S., helping resolve construction claims and disputes, as well as advise on procurement processes with a focus on mitigating the risk of claims and change orders.

Ken was the Senior Contract Manager on the Gerald Desmond Bridge Replacement Project in Long Beach, California, where he helped the Port of Long Beach evaluate the merits of change order requests, develop responses to change order requests, and prepared materials for submission to the Dispute Resolution Board and the project neutral. Ken performed similar services for agencies in Arizona, Maryland, Virginia, Utah, and Missouri.

Ken's time at WSP also involved the procurement of contractors, with a focus on projects using alternative delivery methods such as design-build, progressive design-build, Construction Manager/General Contractor, and Public-Private-Partnerships. Ken led the development of the procurement documents, including RFPs and contracts.
